

MATERIAL GIRL
Fiona wears a dress from Out of the Blue, tights, American Apparel, headband, Parasol, shoes and shawl, stylist's own. Fabric provided by Mitchell Fabrics.

EMPIRE STATE OF MIND

FIONA SANIPELLI'S MODERN DESIGN AND ELEGANT TASTE TAKE REFUGE IN THE BIG APPLE.

Story by COURTNEY RUTHERFORD
Photography by DENNIS SAPONG for Kliché Studios
Hair by HALLEY GOLIN for Berns & Black
Makeup by SABRINA WALL
Styling by ECO DZAMAN

FROM TOP TO BOTTOM
EXTERIOR OF SEGOVIA, INTERIOR DINING ROOM OF CLAY OVEN, INTERIOR DINING ROOM OF HU'S ASIAN BISTRO
PROVIDED BY FIONA SANIPELLI

Ecclectic with a mix of vintage and sparkle are just a few words that Fiona Sanipelli uses to describe herself. Fitting for a girl who now lives in New York City.

Since making the move to the "Big Apple", the former Winnipegger has realized a few things about her new home: it's painfully expensive, you don't have much down time, and you have to get used to being bumped into frequently.

Her passion for design began as a young girl growing up on the Canadian prairies. "I was obsessed with decorating my room from a very young age."

CONTINUED ON PAGE 40

“Being a designer takes over your life because the line between career and passion is blurred.”